MOKENA PTA VICTORY BOOK DRIVE ON

Frankfort Amateur Shows To Be Held By Civic Club

The Frankfort Civic Club will hold their fourth annual Amateur show on the nights of March 19 and 20 at 8 p.m., in the Frankfort school gym.

Special features will be music by combined bands of Frankfort and Mokena on Friday night, the closing night.

Prizes to be awarded each night will be as follows: 1st $5, 2nd $4, 3rd $3, 4th $2, 5th $1.

These shows have always been well attended and excellent local talent has taken part. This year an equally fine program is offered each night with talent from this and near by territory participating. Be sure to attend either one or both nights. It will be well worth your while to see these outstanding local shows. It is surprising how much good talent is to be found right here at home. Remember the time, date and place and come and bring your neighbors and friends.

FORMER MOKENA RESIDENTS CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler assisted by their daughters Adeline and Ada, entertained at a family gathering in the Semmler home, Mokena, honoring the silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Deadmore of Joliet, the latter being Mrs. Semmler's sister. Guests were: Their brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Oestreich, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Oestreich and daughter Patsy, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Gribble of Joliet, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Spiess and Mr. Raymond Westlund.

Pinochle was played and prizes awarded. Little Patsy Oestreich presented the lovely gifts of silver from the guests to her great aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Deadmore and also to her grandmother, Mrs. Gribble who was observing her 66th birthday. Mrs. Deadmore and Mrs. Gribble were each presented with an orchid corsage.

Luncheon was served buffet style from the dining room table which was laid with a silver designed table cloth centered with a large cake flanked with silver candles. A social hour of music and games followed and all wished the honored guests many more happy anniversaries.

Mokena Boy Scouts Sell 4200 Pounds Of Wastepaper

Last Saturday was a red letter day for our Mokena Boy Scouts as they sold the wastepaper they had been collecting for the past few weeks. As a result of the drive up to date, Uncle Sam's paper companies have 4,200 pounds more of wastepaper; the troop treasury has gained the amount of $24.65. The Scouts wish to take this opportunity of thanking every one who participated in the newspaper campaign.

This job of wastepaper collecting is one that the Boy Scouts as a national organization have offered to do for the "duration" as one of their many contributions to the victory program of our Nation. As a result the Mokena Scouts have decided to continue the local paper drive with monthly community wide pick ups. Pick-ups will be made the second Saturday of each month.

The next pickup therefore falls this Saturday, March 14. On the fore noon of that day the Scouts will call at the homes of people who are conserving their wastepaper to bind it into bundles. In the afternoon a pick up will be made at those homes.

In connection with newspaper conservation, the War Production Board urges every family to "save, not burn all their wastepaper". The wastepaper collected finds its way, after reprocessing, into cartons for the shipment of war material and into such vital items as waterproof ammunition containers.

Civic Club Will Conduct Audition

The Frankfort Civic club will conduct an audition at the Frankfort gym this coming Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock for all those wishing to participate in the Amateur shows which the club will sponsor on the evenings of March 19 and 20. Only those who desire to participate in the program are invited to the audition.

WILL HOLD BAKERY SALE

The Ladies Aid of the St. Peter Evang. church will hold a bakery sale March 18 at 10 a.m. in the A. J. Heusner garage in Frankfort.

NOTICE

It is necessary to change the opening date of the New Lenox Red Cross sewing rooms from Tuesday, March 17 to Tuesday, March 24 from 1 to 5 p.m. Chairs and sewing machines are badly needed and anyone wishing to help out in this matter may donate or loan this needed equipment. Those wishing to learn knitting may do so by bringing their own yarn and needles and a competent instructress will be on hand to give instructions.

Will Co., Community Chest Drive Opens Next Friday March 20

This Paper Gets Local Community News On Air

For the first time in the history of the communities served by this newspaper has the local news been heard on radio broadcasts.

As a special service to the communities served by his three weekly publications, The News-Bulletin, The Tinley Park Times and Orland Park Herald, editor Wm. Semmler arranged with radio station WCLS in Joliet for two spots on the radio's community reporter program last fall and this feature has proved very popular throughout this section. Tune in on radio station WCLS every Monday and Tuesday afternoons at 1:05 p.m., for the local news.

Read the full radio program of WCLS as it appears in the above mentioned papers every week.

HUNDREDS HONOR MEMORY OF LATE PAUL SCHOENE

Persons from every walk of life from city officials, county officials, business executives, senators, political figures of the day down to the humblest citizen and the employees of the Woodruff Hotel attended the funeral services held Saturday afternoon for Paul Schoene in the Wunderrlich Funeral Home in Joliet.

The casket was virtually surrounded by beautiful floral offerings.

Rev. Walter McPherson of the Universalist church of Joliet delivered a most touching service setting forth the indefinable something in the personality of Mr. Schoene which attracted people to him. He loved life, beauty, music, art and friends. Tho the Paul Schoene we knew in the flesh has passed from sight, yet Rev. McPherson pointed out, his spirit of hospitality and friendship will still permeate the Woodruff Hotel.

Mr. Schoene was well known in the eastern part of Will County and especially in Frankfort Township where he was often seen in the German Day observances in Frankfort Grove.

Mr. Schoene came to America in 1908 as a young man and became a citizen of this country and was as fine and loyal an American citizen as could be found.

Will County as well as Joliet has lost a loyal citizen and outstanding character in the passing of Mr. Schoene.

Representatives from the country towns of Will County attended a dinner at the Woodruff Hotel in Joliet Wednesday night at which plans were presented for the Community Drive of Will County which will open March 20 and continue thru to March 30th.

Attorney Walter Herschbach was the chairman of the meeting and called on various Joliet men connected with the Community Chest Drive to give detailed accounts of the nature of the drive, the administrative cost of same, where the proceeds go, etc. There are fourteen separate agencies who receive a pro rata share of the funds raised. In order to make the drive a county affair instead of only for Joliet, all the country towns in the county have been asked to help in the drive to raise $103,000 for the Community Chest.

Those attending the gathering from Frankfort township were the following: Frankfort, Attorney Albert Krusemark, Jr., Arthur Bauch, John Luhring; Mokena, Elmer Cooper, Everett Cooper, Mrs. Rose Moriarty, Mrs. Albert Cappel and Wm. Semmler.

Next Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock a meeting will be held at the Mokena school gym for the purpose of organizing helpers for the drive in Mokena to perfect various details in connection with the drive. Everyone in Mokena will be solicited to give toward this worthy cause. The Community Chest drive is taking the place of tag days formerly used to raise funds for the operation of the fourteen agencies of the county in which are included the Silver Cross and St. Joseph hospitals, Morning Star Mission, YMCA, Orphan homes, etc.

Honor 85th Birthday Of Mrs. Caroline Marti

The family of Mrs. Caroline Marti gathered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Marti, near Mokena, Sunday March first to help Mrs. Marti celebrate her 85th birthday. Later in the day, friends and relatives who had remembered the birthday date of Mrs. Marti, called at the home to wish her many happy returns of the day. Mrs. Marti is in fairly good health.

Two Card Groups Celebrate Mr. and Mrs. H. Deadmore's Silver Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Deadmore of Joliet, former Mokena residents, have played cards with two card groups of Mokena for the past 20 years and these two groups planned a surprise in their honor last Saturday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Spiess in Mokena, honoring the Deadmore's 25th wedding anniversary.

Before cards were played, a mock wedding was held in which Mr. John Jensen of Joliet was the bride; Mrs. Alfonso Kohl of Marley, the groom; Mrs. John Jensen, flower girl, with a lovely bouquet of cauliflowers, carrots and celery; Mrs. Ed Schmidt, of Mokena was ring bearer. Alfonso Kohl and Ed Schmidt, maiden aunts of the bridal couple; Fred Hentsch, minister, and a mighty good one too, and Mrs. Fred Hentsch played the wedding march.

Mrs. Andrew Cappel read from Sears Roebuck catalog the obligations to the bride and groom and thru it the latter promised to eat his carrots each day and not to grumble when his wife used the car.

Luncheon was served at one long table, the center piece being a large three tiered wedding cake topped with a bride and groom, made by Mrs. A. Kohl. The group presented Mr. and Mrs. Deadmore with a purse of $10 in silver pieces and a beautiful mixed bouquet.

Those present besides the host and hostess and the honored couple were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hentsch, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kohl, Mr. and Mrs. John Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cappel, Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Hauck, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lauffer, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Schmidt and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Damman.

AAA PROGRAM ON DINNER BELL HOUR

Announcements have been made of an appearance of men from the AAA state office on the regular WLS Dinner Bell Program, starting Friday, March 6. The next appearance will be March 20 with John F. Bicket speaking on AAA conservation; March 27 with Elmer F. Messman speaking on grain storage; and April 3 with Harry M. Combrink speaking on marketing quotas.

Farmers' attention is called to these important broadcasts because many changes have been made in the AAA program to meet the emergency food program.

Frankfort Lions Observe First Annual Charter Night

The Frankfort Lions club observed their first annual Charter Night banquet in the St. Peter's Evang. church parlors Tuesday evening.

In addition to the members of the local club, and wives and families, Lions clubs of Joliet, Manhattan, Rockdale and several others were represented. District Lions Governor Frank Brummund of Joliet attended.

In addition Republican candidates for the various county offices were present and were introduced, also Mayor Geo. Sangmeister of Frankfort who is a candidate on the Democratic ticket for the office of Probate Clerk.

Rev. G. Gerhold of St. Peter's Evang. church offered the invocation and Rev. R. Malek of the Frankfort Methodist church, the benediction. A song service of Lions and popular and old time numbers was thoroughly enjoyed.

Attorney Albert H. Krusemark served as toastmaster. The speaker of the evening was the Rev. Walter MacPherson pastor of the Universalist church of Joliet who delivered a rousing and enlightening address on the topic of "Men of Good Will". In the course of his talk, the speaker showed that for many years the Biblical story of the Herald Angels and their Song was not correctly told. He pointed out that by saying Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men it made the angelic hosts appear like heavenly crooners when what they really meant and the phrase that really makes sense is Peace on Earth to Men of Good Will. Rev. Mr. MacPherson has been in Europe eight times and observed the conditions which brought about the present world chaos when upon his return to this country he revealed what he had seen and heard he did not find anyone who would take stock in what he said.

He pointed out that the people turned a deaf ear to the conditions which finally have become a reality. He said that the present war was a racial one in which the yellow race was fighting for the supremacy of the world. In referring to good will he declared that in order to bring about a lasting and world peace, good will must begin right at home and from there on spread out to the neighborhood, the community, state and nation and finally internationally. In order to bring about this spirit of good will all jealousy, suspicion, hatreds must be absolutely abolished. War can only be kept alive by hatreds, suspicions and when these have been annihilated and the real good will is allowed full sway, peace of a lasting nature will then be assured. At the close of the evening's address, Franklin Doyle of Oak Park, an astrologist, presented an educational as well as laugh provoking entertainment by way of demonstration of meanings of the Zodiac.

He declared astrology plays a very important part in the lives of many persons and matters, and that many of the outstanding men of today are never without a horoscope.

Frankfort Grain Company Annual Meeting March 16

The Frankfort Grain Co. will hold their annual meeting in the Frankfort village hall March 16th at 1:30 p.m., at which time a detailed report of the year's business will be made and three directors will be elected.

New Lenox PTA Meets March 13

The New Lenox Parent Teacher Association will hold its next monthly meeting at the school auditorium, Friday evening, March 13 at 7:45 o'clock.

The speaker for the evening will be Dr. Gustav J. Froehlich of the Univ. of Chicago. Dr. Froehlich is in the field of Psychology and will speak on the subject, "The Nature-Nurture Controversy."

There will also be a homemaking display under the supervision of Mrs. Clarence Luther. Whether or not you are a member, we welcome any exhibit, such as old or unusual glass ware, pictures, hand knitted garments, needlepoints, handmade rugs or anything of interest pertaining to the home. In connection with this exhibit there will be a candy sale, of which the proceeds will be added to the cost of the flag the homemakers have purchased for the school.

At this meeting a nominating committee will be appointed, so we urge every PTA member to be present. The election of new officers will take place in April.

March 16 to 24 Set For Collection Of Books

A victory book campaign to secure books for our boys in the armed forces is scheduled for Mokena and vicinity the week of March 16 to 24. This campaign is sponsored by the Mokena Parent Teacher Association at the suggestion of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers as one of the activities which PTA groups should carry on at the present time.

Here are the details of the campaign. The main receiving station for books will be at the school, and children are requested to have their parents let them bring to the school station such books as they can donate. Other receiving stations will be located at strategic points elsewhere in the Village where books may be deposited for pick up at the end of the campaign. Books chiefly wanted are stories of adventure and humor, standard mystery and detective fiction, books on travel, history, current comment, biography and up to date technical books.

The committee in charge of the campaign urges you to go through your library now and select such books as you feel you can give to this worthy cause. You can send your books to the school with your children or leave them at one of the receiving stations or call Mokena 2202 for a pick-up.

The committee consists of Robert O. Geuther, chairman; Gerald Dunn, school principal; and Mrs. A. Bender. If you wish further details, get in touch with any of these folks.

Orland Draft Board Places Serial Numbers On 1785 Registration Cards

Cook County Local Board No. 10 Orland Park, wishes to announce that they have received from Gov. Dwight H. Green an initial supply of Silver Star of Service to be given to the immediate family having men now serving in the nation's armed forces. You can obtain this Silver Star of Service by calling at the Office of Cook County Local Board 10 at Orland Park.

Meeting of March 9, 1942 to serial number registration cards of the third registration. Cook County Local Board 10 met Monday evening March 9 for the purpose of shuffling and serial numbering 1785 registration cards in this area of the third registration under Selective Service. The Board was happy to have the Lemont American Legion Post 243 represented by Al Graf and Walter Tedens, the Orland Park Legion Post 526 represented by Commander George Cox, Past Commanders Herman Nicolai, and Ray Doctor, Commissioner Carl Bormet, and members of the Advisory Board, Judd H. Matthews and Robt. E. McCloy, all of whom ably assisted in this important work.

Among the registrants of this Local board present was Grant Wortman of Tinley Park, Stewart M. Loebe, Sec. of the board, received serial No. T-228 and W. R. Schussler Jr., chairman of the Board received serial No. T-350. The Board together with the volunteer help shuffled and numbered the 1785 cards and were busy until approximately 11 o'clock at which time a telegram was sent to the State Director advising him of the highest serial number used in this area. The names of the men registered in this third registration will be listed and on file at this office after Friday, March 13, and any one wishing to know his number may call at this office at any time. The order numbers will be drawn in the National Lottery at Washington, D. C. on March 17, 1942.

Tinley Park PTA News

The March meeting of the PTA was called to order by the Pres. Mrs. Burley Anfield, last Friday afternoon.

The pledge of allegiance was given by the assembly.

The seventh grade entertained by singing several patriotic numbers.

OOPS!
Believe it or not, on the radio the other night a commentator had spent most of his time discussing the rubber crisis, and had ended with the words "Rubber is one of our greatest needs," when the announcer went into his eulogy of a cigar.

GETTING A NEW TIRE

Q.—What can I do for you?
A.—I want three new tires.
Q.—(sharply)—You want what?
A.—Two new tires.
Q.—(severely)—How many?
A.—(meekly)—One!
Q.—What's your full name?
A.—Luke Z. Woggle.
Q.—How old?
A.—About two years.
Q.—You're older than that!
A.—Oh, I thought you meant the age of my old tires.

Q.—What kind of car is it?
A.—Pretty good except for the rubber.
Q.—I mean what make?
A.—It's a flivver.
Q.—Are you a doctor, nurse, military officer or veterinarian?
A.—No, but in this emergency anything can happen to me.
Q.—Do you use your car exclusively for delivering ice, coal, wood or oil?
A.—No, it only LOOKS that way!

Q.—Is it used to transport farm products?
A.—No; those apples have been on the floor for three months.
Q.—Do you use it in garbage collection?
A.—No; the kids mess it up that way.
Q.—How many people in your family?
A.—Six.
Q.—What is your wife's maiden name?
A.—Jennie.
Q.—Where are you employed?
A.—Say, am I here to get a new tire or some new life insurance!

Q.—We've got to be careful to conserve rubber. It's important to be sure you are the sort of person who would get the most out of a tire. Got to know your background.
A.—I'm a special case. My wife's relatives live with me and they all demand transportation in my car.
Q.—It's not a bus!
A.—That's what you think!

Q.—From all the facts, I do not think we can classify you for a certificate above the rate of D-12.
A.—What's the top class?
Q.—A-3.
A.—Never mind a new tire. I'll settle for a tire patch and a used inner tube!

IT SEEMS SO
I've very often heard it said
That doughty generals die in bed;
That, far from the repugnant strife,
They, fluffed in feathers, part with life.

But, looking over Hitler's list,
And at the ones the Russians miss'd
I've come to the conclusion sad
That Nazi generals die "in bad."

The Indoor Hat-Wearers' League
We are glad to hear that Bill Knudsen works with his hat on. "It helps me think," he says. We are a charter member of the League of Indoor Hat Wearers, and have stood for much criticism through the years. We wore our bonnet as a boy editor of the New Haven Register. We wore it constantly on the copy desk of the old Globe. We have never taken it off at work since. To remove it for a minute means a complete stoppage of thought and confidence. It is good to know that a man like Mr. Knudsen belongs to our club.

Mickey Rooney is now a married man and it makes millions of Americans suddenly feel old. It is difficult to imagine that Mickey, the Number One Kid of the Movie World, now has to bring home groceries, help hang pictures and do his part in selecting new wall paper.

We hear that Mickey may now play the judge in the Judge Hardy series, with Louis Stone playing the kid part.

Toast for St. Patrick's Day . . . Pineapple Frosties!

(See Recipes Below)

Shamrock Fare

Take your cue from good luck day and let your menu wear green! Bring out your best Pat and Mike jokes and touch up your food for the day with a dash of imagination by applying a green brush stroke, for these are the things which put a halo on your head.

There's a hint of spring in the green touches and in the lightness of this season's menus, so whisk these two elements into your food to give it exciting personality.

With simplicity your keynote and economy your guide, here are some menus for small entertaining on St. Patrick's day.

Menu I.

Afternoon or Evening Snack
Pineapple Frosties
Finger Sandwiches
Pop Corn Nougat

Menu II.

Bridge Refreshments

Shamrock Salad
Prune Bread With Cream Cheese Spread

Coffee or Tea Cornflake Chews

A drink with plenty of tang and vitamins is this one called a Pineapple Frosty. Its vitamins B1 and C will boost your energy quota and at the same time give your teeth and bones and gums a new lease for spring.

*Pineapple Frosties.

For each serving use a six-ounce glass of unsweetened pineapple juice and a generous scoop of sherbet. Chill a large beating bowl, add well-chilled pineapple juice. When the sherbet begins to soften, beat the ingredients until they are well-blended and frothy. A jar or shaker or automatic beater may be used to blend these together.

Pop Corn Nougat.

1½ cups corn syrup
1½ cups sugar
½ cup warm water
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons honey
2 egg whites
1 cup chopped pop corn
2 tablespoons candied cherries, cut fine

Cook syrup, sugar, water and salt until brittle when tried in cold water. Put honey in a large bowl, place over pan containing hot water to keep honey warm. While candy is cooking, beat egg whites stiff and fold through honey. When syrup is cooked to the proper stage, pour it slowly over the honey and egg, beating hard with wooden spoon. Beat until the surface has a satiny appearance. Fold in pop corn and cherries, press into buttered pan.

Ever so good, ever so simple, and very pretty describes this light green salad in today's column. The grapefruit and lime flavored gelatin is a spirited combination that work the right kind of magic.

Lynn Says:

As fish gains prominence in menus, are you wondering how you can make it appetite-tempting? Here is a guide:

Nice to dip in egg and bread crumbs and fry in shallow fat: perch, pike, haddock, halibut, cod, sole, lake trout, salmon, in steak or fillet form.

Good for baking with or without a stuffing: the large fish, like whitefish, haddock, halibut, wall-eyed pike, salmon steaks, lake trout.

First class for deep-fat frying: oysters, shrimp, scallops. Dip these in beaten egg and crumbs and fry in deep, hot fat.

Baked in loaves or timbales: haddock, salmon, tuna, cod.

Stuffings that go well with baked fish: bread stuffing (the same kind you make for your fowl!); celery stuffing, or rice stuffing (try this with pike!). For rice stuffing, combine 1 cup cooked rice with ½ pound sautéed mushrooms, 2 tablespoons of chopped onion, 2 beaten eggs, ¼ cup celery, all cooked with ½ cup butter. This makes enough for a 3 to 4-pound fish.

This Week's Menu:

Baked Haddock *Tartar Sauce
Lyonnaise Potatoes
*Orange Squash
*Shamrock Salad
*Prune Bread Butter and Honey
Chilled Pears Cornflake Chews
*Recipes Given.

*Shamrock Salad. (Serves 6)

1 package lime flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
¾ cup cold water
¼ cup grapefruit juice
1½ cups grapefruit sections
¼ cup finely chopped celery
Pimientos

Pour hot water over gelatin. Add cold water and grapefruit juice. Chill until mixture thickens, add grapefruit and celery. Arrange pimientos cut into shamrock shapes around sides of a mold or at the bottom. Pour mixture into mold, chill until firm, unmold and garnish with grapefruit sections and greens.

A favorite breakfast cereal and prunes are a healthy merger for this home-made bread. The fruit and cereal are food affinities. The result, an excellent bread that stays moist for days, is good sliced when fresh or when toasted.

*Prune Bread. (Makes 1 loaf)

2 cups bran cereal
¾ cup juice from cooked prunes
¾ cup chopped, cooked prunes
¾ cup buttermilk
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon shortening
1 egg

1½ cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons soda
½ cup chopped nuts, if desired
Soak cereal in prune juice. Add buttermilk. Cream sugar and shortening thoroughly, add egg and beat well. Add bran cereal mixture. Sift dry ingredients, add to prunes and nuts. Add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Bake in a greased loaf pan in a moderate (325-degree) oven, 1 hour and 20 minutes.

The orange flavoring gives a delightful touch to the squash which is colorful served in orange cups.

*Orange Squash. (Serves 6)

3 cups cooked Hubbard squash
½ cup orange juice
3 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper

½ cup chopped almonds
Bake or steam squash until tender (1½ to 2 hours). Mash or rice. Add orange juice, butter, salt and pepper. Fill 6 orange shells with squash mixture, piling it in lightly. Top with chopped almonds. Bake until lightly browned in a hot (450-degree) oven. For best results use oranges that have clean, smooth skins which separate from the orange easily.

*Tartar Sauce.

Popular and fitting accompaniment to fish is this sauce: Combine 1 cup mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon onion juice or 1 tablespoon chopped chives, 2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickle or green relish, lemon juice to thin to desired consistency.

While you're busy this season rolling bandages for the Red Cross, knitting for the soldiers, or baking for the boys at camp, you'll want to plan menus and dishes that take little time for preparation. With this in mind, I'm including a recipe for an excellent casserole that fills these requirements:

Shrimp Vegetable Casserole. (Serves 6)

2 medium onions, sliced
1 green pepper, cut in rings
1 cup cooked peas
1 cup coarsely broken, wide noodles, uncooked

3 cups canned tomatoes
2 No. 1 cans shrimp, cleaned
3 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper

Place alternate layers of ingredients in greased casserole. Dot with butter and season with salt and pepper. Cover and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 1 hour.

'Seaworthiness'

"Seaworthiness" covers not only a ship's condition but many other factors, including the quality of officers and crew. Seamen have won judgments for injuries received on "unseaworthy" ships, in one case because the mate was brutal and in another because the Chinese crew could not understand orders without an interpreter.

GOVERNOR GREEN PROCLAIMS NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW WEEK

"National Flower and Garden Show Week" was proclaimed by Governor Dwight H. Green in recognition of the importance of the Twenty-third National Flower and Garden Show to be held at the International Amphitheatre March 15 to 22.

James Sykora and Alec Henderson, co-chairmen of the Flower Show, conferred with the governor on the gardens for victory and flowers for morale. The show will feature five victory gardens in the Amateur Section.

Chicago and surrounding communities are displaying the greatest interest ever shown in a flower show, as evidenced by the large number of advance sale tickets sold this year, according to Robert H. Roland, general manager of the show. More than 100,000 advance sale tickets have been distributed among 600 florists, stores, women's clubs and garden clubs.

The show will feature twelve major exhibits on the main floor of the Amphitheatre, each large enough to warrant a star billing as a major attraction.

Recently added to the panorama of beauty and glamor is an orchid display by Andrew Benson of Des Plaines, one of America's outstanding growers and hybridizers of the exotic flower. This spectacular orchid display will be in the north wing, which will also house the feature exhibit of the Czechoslovakian Garden Club—a beautiful reproduction of the Castle of Hradčany overlooking the ancient city of Prague.

A panel of green lawn, bordered on either side by wide beds of tall tulips, in brilliant colors, will provide the prelude to spring. June, the month of roses, will be portrayed in a huge outdoor rose garden, featuring four great "V's" of brilliantly colored roses.

Herb gardens, outdoor fireplaces, naturalistic gardens, and formal ones will be created by leading landscape architects within the Chicago area. Thousands of roses, carnations, snapdragons, stocks and other leading seasonal flowers, in huge color masses, will vie for some twenty thousand dollars in cash prizes. Rare and special flowers and plants will be rushed to the show by fast express and plane.

Over two hundred organizations are represented in the Amateur Section, according to Mr. Roland. Educational displays will be featured by the University of Illinois and the Ohio State University. Six universities are sending students to take part in the flower judging contests. The British-American Ambulance and the American Red Cross will have special booths at the show.

Many thousands of school children will attend in class groups. Garden and high school classes, as well as junior garden clubs, have taken keen interest in entries in the special Junior Section.

"The whole purpose of the show is educational. The plan for the show," Mr. Roland explained, "follows that of the famous shows of Great Britain, wherein the finest of plants and flowers by growers compete in the major classes. The ingenuity of the flower lover and the amateur horticulturist finds a happy means of expression in the gardens, shadow boxes, table decorations and other exhibits of the Amateur Section."

The show opens its doors at 2 p. m. Sunday, March 15, and runs for eight days, opening daily at 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Ample parking space is provided for those who drive cars to the show. The show, largest indoor flower show in America, is expected to attract visitors from a radius of five hundred miles. The value of the plants and flowers on display is expected to be approximately a million dollars.

WAR-TIME SPIRIT IS UNITING LABOR IN COMMON CAUSE

Men and machines do their part while soldiers, sailors, flyers and marines are in camp and at the front.

Sweeping the country in these days of national emergency is a wave of at least temporary concession and tolerance that is uniting workers in a common cause.

Reported from all sections is growing evidence that both organized and unorganized labor are working to one end; that military victory is the supreme essential; that the one movement now meriting the consideration of patriotic Americans is complete mobilization for the general good, and that to achieve success every unnecessary municipal, county, state and federal expense must be curtailed.

Such unity, following America's enforced entry into war, came about through a growing realization of the fact that the closed shop is in violation of the spirit of the federal Constitution, which guarantees every man an equal opportunity, including the right to work. Any man may join any organization that does not engage in subversive activity, just as he may join the church or lodge of his choice. But the Constitution does not force him to do so, nor does it deny him the right to work when he can get employment.

In 1941 there were 51,361,000 employed civilian workers in the United States, according to the National Conference Board. In the American Federation of Labor and the CIO, with which practically all unions are affiliated, there were fewer than 14 million members in 1941. Therefore approximately 37 million workers, or 73 per cent of the total—about three in every four—do not belong to any labor union at all. Forty per cent of all civilian workers live in communities of less than 25,000, where the union movement has made little headway.

In the light of the present situation these facts are considered significant and worthy of the most careful consideration on the part of every American citizen.

Nazi and Fascist Blandishments Fail in Wooing Chile and Peru

U. S. Backs Its Good Will Gestures With Orders for War Materials; Geographical Position Eases Fear of Attack; Leaders Are Popular

The following article by Mr. Tomlinson, author and lecturer, who has studied South and Central America for eighteen years, is timely and interesting. We will publish additional authentic feature articles dealing with significant personalities and fundamental institutions of Latin American countries whose newspaper publishers are cooperating with Publishers' Reciprocal Program (Inter-American) by publishing in their newspapers feature articles backgrounding and interpreting of our "way of life" in the United States.—Editor.

By EDWARD TOMLINSON

IN SPITE of great numbers of active Germans and Italians, Nazi-Fascist pressure has had less effect in the Andean republics of Chile and Peru than in the countries of the east coast. Italians in Peru have tried to court favor with government through influential nationals in that country. Their Fascist friends from Spain have attempted to woo the aristocratic conservatives by harping on the importance of cultural ties with the Old World. Although ardent in its support of the fatherland, the large German colony in Chile has exerted little or no influence upon the political policies of President Pedro Aguirre Cerda and his government.

Geography and local politics have been among the chief stumbling blocks to non-American political activities in these countries. Unlike the countries to the east, the Pacific coast nations are not particularly worried about an Axis attack by force. Ingenious Nazis and Fascists may conceive of the possibility of attacking Brazil and Argentina and maintaining seaboard transportation to them, but it is hardly possible that any of them can see a way of getting sufficient naval forces to the west coast of the continent to carry out a successful attack, or back up any coup d'etat they might help to effect.

Liberal Trend in West

They also find in western South America a strong tendency toward liberal and even radical government. The Leftist, or Popular Front, administration and Congress in Chile are just the opposite of a Fascist regime. Peru, under the administration of President Manuel Prado, is experiencing the most liberal and democratic regime in twenty years.

But Nazi propagandists continue to battle us on the economic front in Chile and Peru. Here as elsewhere they lose no opportunity to play up the difficulties of trade with the United States. They point to the copper industry as the great example of how the Yankees get control of the great national resources of a country, the products of which the United States does not need and cannot buy.

Many Chileans themselves remind us of this situation and its results. "You own," a Chilean official told me recently, "the world's largest copper mine, located 10,000 feet up in the Andes, at Chuquibambilla, Chile. Your copper investments in this republic alone run into the hundreds of millions. You also built up the great copper industry in Peru. Copper is the largest industry and the largest export from each of these two countries. Yet in normal times practically none of this product can be sold in the United States. Markets must be found for it in other parts of the world."

When reminded that in the emergency the United States is purchasing large quantities of nitrate and iodine from Chile, great quantities of copper from both countries, and is likely to continue to do so for some time, they reply, "Yes, but we are thinking not only in terms of the present crisis but of our future economic welfare."

The Nazis repeat and amplify the same sentiments and add that with the coming of peace (and of course with a victorious Germany) the nations of the "New Order," all under the leadership of the Nazis, will need copper and many other Chilean products. "When this war broke out," they say, "Germany had, through its trade, become a tremendous factor in Chile's economic life. She was buying minerals in increasing quantities. More important still, she was buying wool, wines, timbers and beans, an important export, all of which put profits into the pockets of native Chilean farmers and peasants, instead of the coffers of rich foreigners."

The solution to the problem of our commercial relations with both Chile and Peru, or the possibility of relieving them from European economic pressure, is by no means easy. Fortunately, we will still be a large market for nitrate of soda and iodine. Chile also possesses important deposits of manganese of the finest grade. Like Argentina and Uruguay, if assured a steady market she could increase the production of carpet wool and sheep and lamb skins, as well as animal furs. Chile is one of the original homes of the chinchilla, one of the rarest of all fur-bearing animals. There are possibilities for the increased purchase in this country of Chilean fruits. In December, January and February, during the dead of our winter, she produces the finest of peaches, apricots, plums and melons.

Peru Vanadium Source

To the Peruvians, Nazi agents point out that when the war is over, the United States will buy practically none of their copper; on the other hand, Germany and all Europe will need it, and can buy most of Peru's exports. Fortunately, for us, Peruvian economy is much more diversified than that of her neighbor, Chile. She possesses, or is capable of producing a number of important materials which we buy from non-American countries. Aside from copper and oil, she is a large producer of silver and gold and has the world's leading source of vanadium. Peru alone could supply us with our entire needs of vanadium in the years to come. She also has considerable zinc resources and antimony, both at present strategic products. She has recently gone in for the production of fiber flax, an industry which is receiving encouragement and expert advice from the United States Department of Agriculture. Our own production of fiber flax is rather small, so that the larger portion of our annual consumption of 7,000 tons has come from Europe. Peruvian tea compares favorably with that from the Far East.

Although we are the world's greatest producer of short-staple cotton, long-staple for the manufacture of the finest textiles, particularly the type out of which stiff collars and certain fine grades of thread are made, comes from the outside world, mostly from Egypt. Peruvian long-staple cotton, amply to supply us with most of our imports, is among the finest in the world. Last year we imported 31,899,910 pounds from Egypt and only 393,670 pounds from Peru and the other countries of this Hemisphere.

HOMER

By MRS. FRED KOPELMAN

A large crowd attended the dance sponsored by the Maple Street Arbor of Gleaners Friday night in the Frankfort gym. They enjoyed dancing to Falletti's orchestra.

The Wayside Workers Circle of King's Daughters were entertained in the home of Mrs. Walter Nelson Thursday afternoon. Some garments were completed for the Red Cross. Mrs. Emmons of Lockport was the guest speaker of the afternoon and gave a very accurate talk on the wonderful work that the Red Cross is carrying on. Mrs. David Bigelow was also a guest at this meeting. Mrs. Lee Burnette had charge of the devotionals and Mrs. Nelson favored with a solo. Tasty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sievert who have been residing in the Fred Helme home for the past years, have moved to their farm near Troy. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lauffer and children are residing in the Helme home now.

George Konow had his car badly damaged Thursday night when he was enroute to his work at the E. J. & E., yards in Joliet. George's car and a car driven by a young man from Homewood, collided on Route 159. Neither of the men were hurt, but both cars had to be towed to Joliet.

Mrs. Frank Rodgers and William Rodgers of Joliet were dinner guests Friday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rodgers.

Clyde White returned home Sunday from a week's business trip to Buffalo, New York.

Rev. Harold Finley of Chicago led the morning worship service Sunday in the Congregational church. Miss Shirley Burch sang a solo.

Next Sunday March 15th, Rev. Finley will conduct services at 11 a. m. He will use as his sermon topic "By His Hand." Miss Monna Milton will have charge of securing a special number.

Sunday school will convene at 10 a. m. Following the church services, a short choir practise will be held to practise numbers for Easter Sunday.

Edward Ott, son of Mrs. Marie Ott is ill with the mumps.

Mrs. George Klinker reports that she found in a bushel of apples that she recently purchased a distinct "V" in one of the apples. The apple is red and the "V" stands out in yellow. Mrs. Klinker has interpreted the "V" for a sign for Victory and we are all hoping that it may be true. Mr. and Mrs. Klinker have a son Robert in the quartermaster's department at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Paddock will have a farm sale Saturday afternoon, March 14th. The Paddock's have rented the farm land to Joshua Boyce for the coming year, but will still reside there.

New War Atlas In Next Sunday's "Chicago Sun"

Filling an almost universal need with a new War Atlas, the Chicago Sun includes this up-to-the-minute reference work as an extra added attraction in its issue of next Sunday, March 15. This supplement comes in addition to the regular Sunday features of this new Chicago newspaper: the picture magazine "Parade", 16 big pages of comics, women's features, sports, business pages, amusements, book page and all the news demanding present-day public attention.

Maps of war-torn countries have a habit of becoming obsolete. What was Persia yesterday is Iran today; what was Gdynia now answers to Gothenhafen; Lodz became Littmanstadt; and so on. The mapmaker of today plies his trade with eyes glued to the news dispatches. Either he keeps a step ahead of the times or his maps clutter waste-paper baskets. And who is better able to keep that step ahead than a modern metropolitan newspaper?

As new as today's newspaper, the Chicago Sun's War Atlas shows, as of today, every country fighting today's war on either side. Keyed symbols point out instantly needed essential information about every country at war. Topographical contours are shown with clear precision. Authoritatively drawn lines mark the advance and retreat of armies. Carefully delineated sea and air routes reflect the trend of war afloat and in the sky. Short, snappy legends provide brief word pictures for the maps. Then, in addition to individual pages containing the various theatres of war, a double-page map of the world in four colors offers a bird's-eye view of the whole shooting-match at a glance.

Every American-man, woman and child, will find the maps of this War Atlas interesting, informative, and fact-finding in following and understanding more readily the history-making news now crashing the front pages today and every day.

To follow what goes on where and when, this 16-page book of maps centered upon World War Two becomes a definite necessity for every one. It is accurate, factual and free with next Sunday's issue of the Chicago Sun.

At The Roxy

That lovable and laughable "Lady Eve" couple are at it again in a merry marital marathon in "You Belong to Me", starring the merth provoking and romantic performances of Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda, which will be featured at the Roxy Theatre at Lockport, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Fonda marries his doctor, Miss

Stanwyck, because he liked her bedroom manners, and allows her to continue her practice of medicine until he discovers to his amazement, that her practice consists chiefly of handsome, and susceptible, young man. Fonda, a playboy, is iraked over the entire situation and becomes a bit jealous of his rivals, so he fights with the patients, the doctor bride, and he even fights with himself. It is a merry mad-cap laugh fiesta of moods and manners, which only this two-some could render perfectly. It belongs high up in the list of up-roaring comedies, and is truly a "must see" picture.

This Friday and Saturday, the Roxy Theatre will feature a superb double billing of "Kathleen", with Shirley Temple and Herbert Marshall, plus "Outlaws of the Desert", with William "Hop-Along" Boyd and Andy Clyde.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Sayre and family were Saturday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Hunt in Chicago Heights.

The P. T. Council of the Southwest Suburbs of Cook County will meet at the Atwood Heights School, 116th St. and Crawford Ave., Tuesday evening, March 17 at 8 p.m.

Mrs. H. Overton, chairman of Recreation will speak on "Recreation". The annual election of officers will be held. A meeting of the executive committee has been called for 7:30 p.m. the same evening and members of this committee are requested to come early so as not to delay the start of the meeting.

The WSCS of the Methodist church held their monthly meeting and potluck dinner in the church March 5. The morning was given to sewing and the afternoon the devotional period and business session was held. The Spring Supper and Sale will be April 16. Monday, March 16 has been announced as the deadline for the collection of paper and rags, so hurry your collection of these items to the church. Members are requested to meet at the church at 1 p.m. and bring their baskets and scrub rags along with them.

A meeting of the official board of the church was held March 9 at which time plans were discussed for the rededication services April 19. Another meeting will be held March 16 at 7:30 p.m. at which time final plans will be made. Every member of the board is requested to be present promptly. A social period and refreshments will follow the meeting.

A St. Patrick's Card and Bunco party will be held at St. Michael's church Wednesday evening, March 18 at 8:30 p.m. Immediately after the regular church services. This party will take the place of the usual March party given by the Ladies Sewing Circle of the Church but the regular monthly card and bunco party of that organization will be held the 3rd Thursday of April as usual. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. Paul Simon has been transferred from the Morris, Ill. office of the INR Beatty Lmbr. Co. to the office of the Orland Park branch. Mr. and Mrs. Simons and infant son will make their home in the former Foster Myrick home on Middle St. Orland Park welcomes this new addition to our community and wishes them happiness and success in their new home.

The Lawrence Uthe family have moved to Blue Island.

Mrs. Ella Loebe and son Roy have returned from a 10 day jaunt in the Southland; While away, they visited relatives in San Juan, Texas and took a little side trip into Old Mexico.

Roy Loebe left last Wednesday to accept a position as construction engineer with the firm of Sanderson and Porter who have a contract for construction work in connection with the new Government Ordnance plant being built at Pine Bluff, Ark. This plant will make torpedos and incendiary bombs.

Mrs. Ike Cleveland sustained a painful accident recently when she slipped and fell on the linoleum in her home. In falling, the left wrist was dislocated and the ligaments severely torn. However, though very painful, no permanent injury will be made and she is reported on the road to recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Smith, of 108th Ave., have been receiving considerable mail from the tropics where Mr. Smith's sister JoAnn is a 2nd Lieut. in the United States Army Nurses Corps. Lieut. Smith is stationed at Fort Clayton, near Cristobal, Panama Canal Zone.

Margery Reilly, Velma and Edw. Lucas and Mae Reish spent last Sunday at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., where they visited Owen Strong, who was recently inducted into military service. They report that Owen has settled down to routine army life and likes it fine. He will be sure of getting all the good army chow as he has been assigned to the cooks section. His address is Company K, Camp Grant, Ill.

Mrs. Sarah Martin Innes, 6800 Normal Blvd., died March 5 following a major operation at a Chicago hospital. Funeral services were held March 7 at the Englewood Baptist church and interment was made in the Cedar Park Cemetery. She was the wife of the late Edw. Innes and mother of Kathryn and Martin Innes. Mrs. Innes has a host of friends and acquaintances in Orland Park where she had been a frequent visitor at the home of her sister Mrs. John Loebe.

The old fashioned Square Dance party sponsored by the Recreation Committee of the PTA was held in the School gym last Friday evening and proved to be an interesting and enjoyable affair.

Many of the men guests came in overalls and checked shirts, ladies came in pinafores and sunbonnets. Mr. Thos. Johnson and a delegation of 9 members of the Palos Heights PTA all experienced square dancers were present, acting as instructors to those of our organization who did not know the dance. Following the dancing, refreshments were served and while gathered around the tables community singing was led by Owen Harlan. The evening was replete with fun and good fellowship and it is hoped that it will be the forerunner of many such evenings to come.

Billy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ohlrich celebrated his 1st birthday last Wednesday evening in the home of his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kay. The following were guests at the birthday dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ohlrich, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rice of Tinley Park, great grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Uthe of Blue Island, Miss Louise Kriz of Palos Park, Miss Eleanor Knox and Mr. Harold Kay.

Three Orland Park Misses celebrated their 18th birthdays during the past week, Miss Betty Yunker, March 9, and Miss Eleanor Knox and Miss Vera Zerbs, March 10th.

Wm. McAleer celebrated his 20th birthday the 9th of March.

Mr. and Mrs. David Kreuger left Wednesday morning for Camp Lee, Va. where Mr. Kreuger will be stationed in the Quartermaster Corps, as 2nd Lieut. The Olin Ellwood family will move into the Kreuger home. Mr. Ellwood is on the faculty of the Orland Park High school.

"Every year tuberculosis claims more lives than automobiles," Miss Rose Hoy, R. N., School nurse, pointed out today. However, just as programs are promoted for safeguarding lives from traffic casualties, so are health projects planned to prevent the unnecessary spread and waste of lives from this menacing disease."

Orland Park and Palos Park school children will take part in a tuberculosis prevention program Tuesday, March 24. Under the sponsorship of The Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County, tuberculin skin tests will be given to all children requesting one. Consent slips will be sent into the home of every school child and no child will be tested without the consent of his parents.

"The Tuberculin skin test is simple harmless, and practically painless," said Miss Hoy. It is the easiest method of determining whether or not a person has been in contact with tuberculosis germs. A positive reaction does not mean that a person has tuberculosis, but it does indicate that a chest x-ray should be taken to determine if the lungs have been damaged."

Congressional Views

By Congressman Chauncey Reed

Another Pearl Harbor Mystery? There is a good deal of pointed talk going around the Capital about another mystery which some believe might eventually result in very great censure by the American people when the facts come out. It must be kept in mind, of course, that there are usually two sides to every story. The mystery in question is who is holding up the Alaska defense highway across Canada? For a long time many months in fact, the project has had the nominal approval of the U. S. Department of the Interior, the Governor of Alaska, and the Alaskan delegate to the Congress. But so far nothing has happened. A Congressional committee has been told by a General Staff officer that the project is OK and should be pushed as rapidly as possible. The Committee later heard the President already has the power to start the work, so the Committee had to suspend hearings and leave the matter in the hands of the President. Alaska is nearer to Japan than is Pearl Harbor. It is by far the weakest link, it is said, in our entire Pacific defense chain. Alaskan Delegate Dimond is warning that "another Pearl Harbor" may occur in Alaska. Gov. Gruening saw the Pres. recently about the project, but thus far nothing new is reported.

AAA Relaxing

Further relaxation of AAA rules to allow for increased plantings of soybeans and other vital war crops is announced by Byron Gaskill, chairman of the Will County AAA Committee.

Farmers may expand soybean acreages by reducing acreages planted exclusively to soil conserving crops and still be in full compliance with the rule requiring that at least 20 per cent of a farm's total cropland be devoted to conservation, Mr. Gaskill said.

The new rule extends the list of crops and land uses which may be used to meet the requirement that 20 per cent of the farm's cropland be devoted to soil building crops. Added to the list are perennial grasses and biennial legumes seeded with flax, peas or small grains as a nurse crop.

The amount of these new crops which would count toward fulfilling the farm's 20 per cent conserving acres requirement is limited to 40 per cent of the acreage on the farm planted to war crops. War crops include soybeans harvested as grain, flax, castor beans, sugar beets, dry field peas, dry beans, canning peas and canning tomatoes.

"I strongly urge farmers to get in touch with their community AAA committee or the county committee about this new ruling," Mr. Gaskill said. "Patriotic farmers will want to devote every inch of soil possible for war production purposes. Where grasses or legumes can be seeded in with wheat, oats or other small grain crop, it will be possible in many cases for the farmer to plant additional soybeans on and originally intended for soil conserving purposes. It should be remembered however, that soybeans are severely soil depleting and erosion promoting, and, therefore, only rich, level land is suitable to their growth. Farmers must plan their 1942 production for the war needs of their country but must also keep in mind that the probability of a long war makes it necessary that the fertility of the soil be maintained."

Adopt Plan To Relief Farm Labor Shortage

A plan to replace farm hands who have joined the armed forces or gone to work in defense factories was announced this week by the Will County Agricultural War Board coordinating the war activities of United States Department of Agriculture agencies serving the county.

According to Byron Gaskill, chairman of the board, the principal feature of the plan has been developed in cooperation with the United States Employment Office. The employment office is extending its free service to all counties in the state, with 78 fieldworkers devoting their full time to the placement of farm labor. They will work out of U. S. Employment offices in 43 counties, establishing part-time offices in all other counties of the state.

How this plan will work in Will and Grundy counties is explained by Llewellyn Rogers, Manager, Illinois State Employment Service: "Cards are being mailed to all farmers on which they can list their needs as well as the names of anyone available for farm labor. These cards will be filed in the Labor office at 120 North Scott Street, Joliet where contact will be made between the farmer and those available to work on a farm."

Farmers have the job this year of feeding American fighters and workers as well as providing for the food needs of our Allies. Goals have been set up providing for the greatest Agricultural production on record. As compared to 1941, American farmers have been urged to produce this year 8 per cent more milk and 13 per cent more eggs, market 17 per cent more hogs and 16 per cent more beef cattle and Illinois farmers have been requested to raise 27 per cent more soybeans.

THE RAILROADS—AND FREE ENTERPRISE

In 1893, "tops" in railroad transportation was the Empire State Express between New York and Buffalo. In speed it seldom made as high as 50 miles an hour. Air brakes were new and not too reliable. It provided the best of that era in the way of equipment, coaches, chair cars, a dining car and parlor car. They were heated by steam, then a new device, and you were either too hot or too cold. The smoke and dust seeped in around every window. If any one passenger wanted a window open, all other passengers suffered from the cold, or the heat and dirt. It was a marvel of a train for its time, and to ride in its coaches you paid three cents a mile, with a higher rate in the chair or parlor cars.

Today the Empire State Express of 1893 would be a third-class local. Competition under the American system of free enterprise has encouraged improvements so that today you make the same trip on a streamlined, air-conditioned train in which you find no dirt or smoke or drafts, no extremes of heat or cold. Your train is automatically protected against accidents and travels at a much higher average rate of speed. And today you ride in the coaches or chair cars of these much superior trains at a cost of two cents or less per mile.

No other railroads in the world approach those of the United States in convenience, facilities and carrying capacity. No others have opened up such rich frontiers or made possible the development of so many fine towns and cities and the cultivation of such vast agricultural areas.

Competition under the American system of free enterprise was responsible for improvement and growth—responsible for the building of a network of 233,670 miles of railroad which provides us with freight and passenger accommodations and gives jobs to 1,045,738 employees with earnings totaling $1,990,630,844 a year.

"CLOSED SHOP" COSTS MILLIONS OF MAN-DAYS

The time lost by workers in strikes called shortly before the United States was drawn into war would have permitted the manufacture of 37 more destroyers than were made, or 466 more pursuit planes, or 50 more super-bombers.

Seven million man-days of work for war production were sacrificed between June, 1940 and the beginning of the all-out war program.

The nation as a whole lost 17,167,312 man-days of labor in the first eight months of 1941 as a result of strikes—five times as many as were lost in the same 1940 period. At that rate the loss for the entire year 1941 would be 21,458,750 man-days.

The number of strikes called in the first eight months of 1941 was 2,637, an increase of 70 per cent over the corresponding 1940 period, when 1,634 strikes were imposed upon labor in this country.

In nearly all cases these strikes represented the action of a minority, either to enforce the closed shop on the majority or settle some jurisdictional dispute between unions.

Nearly three-fourths of American workers do not belong to unions, yet they were compelled to suffer the loss of millions of dollars in wages. Besides, the strikes meant a slowdown in production for the crisis now existing, as well as higher prices for things produced.

The time lost in strikes can never be made up. Strikes waste the resources of the nation. "Voluntary cooperation" and "collective bargaining" are recognized in principle, both in agriculture and labor, but the closed shop violates the spirit of individual liberty. The right of "collective bargaining" does not mean monopoly. Labor leaders must now forget the closed shop idea and earnestly help the country win through for victory and for the preservation of the American system of individual freedom and opportunity.

FHA and New Homes

Many workers engaged in the war industry today are taking full advantage of the opportunity to build their own homes through the nation's effort to provide more and more homes in the "defense areas". The indications for the future are that this interest in home building will continue at a quickening pace.

Workers who have lived for some time in the areas where they are employed at present have invested increased earnings in their own homes. Others who moved from distant points have adopted the new areas and built homes. In all cases the motivating idea is to own a new and better home. Howard M. Thompson, general Manager of Home Owners' Catalogs, revealed that a study of recent home building activities shows that machinists, assembly line workers, office workers, draftsmen, engineers and executives are building their own homes in the vast blanket of defense areas that practically covers the country.

Readers of this paper who are planning to build homes for their own occupancy in this defense area at costs of $4,000 or more, exclusive of land purchases, may have their own personal copies of Home Owners' Catalogs, including the guide to home planning, to help their considerations of the features that are to be included in their new homes. It will be sent without cost or any other obligation upon application to the publishers, F. W. Dodge Corporation, Chicago. It will be sent postage prepaid to all families who qualify.

For the Poets

Unknown poets will have the same chance as professionals to win in America's Poet - Laureate contest, as names will be removed from all entries before being judged, Claude B. Coldren, committee chairman, announced this week.

New awards—in response to many requests from schools and colleges—include a college division, junior college, high school and junior high school division.

First, second and third place will be named in each of these divisions, and all entries will be considered in the general division.

Entries should be mailed immediately as the contest will close March 15. Ten cents should be enclosed to defray clerical and postage costs. Poems should be mailed to H. M. Hudson, Sec., Poet Laureate Committee, Broadway Building, San Diego, California.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 8th.

The Golden Text was, "Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us?" (Mal. 2:10)

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; . . . So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them" (Genesis 1: 26 to : 27).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man, in the likeness of his Maker, reflects the central light of being, the invisible God. As there is no corporeality in the mirrored form, which is but a reflection, so man, like all things real, reflects God, his divine Principle, not in a mortal body" (p. 305).

Women Are Not Only Behind America's Defense Program—They Are Part of It

Bridge and Fancy Hats Are Discarded in Favor Of Hard Work.

By JANET CUPLER

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

You have probably heard it said with great enthusiasm that the American women are doing their part in the nation's war effort. And, by way of explanation, you have probably heard it said that "morale is a woman's business" and that there is something called the "home front" on which women are best qualified to wage their own particular kind of battle. But there seems to be some doubt as to just what part women are actually playing in this war. There is doubt, too, as to what "morale" and the "home front" have to do with it.

Most of us are aware that the "home front" involves battles of production, of food, clothing and housing, of protection from attack, of the constructive and determined courage we refer to as "morale." Morale is, of course, not exclusively a woman's business any more than the opportunity to fire a gun at the enemy is a man's exclusive right. But behind every shot fired on the battlefield lies a series of duties that make that shot possible. And it is those duties that women have been performing, willingly and with admirable skill.

Without the proper food a nation, as well as its armed forces, cannot survive. Therefore, a large part of the national defense program and the work of women's organizations is being devoted to food. The Office of Civilian Defense offers consumers' information and classes in nutrition, and all who can are urged to plant gardens. The "Victory Program" of the 4-H clubs helps members to grow and preserve food and teaches them how to prepare foods having a high vitamin content.

Learn to Repair Clothes.

The Senior Service Scouts, Girl Scouts of high school age, are learning the principles of nutrition, emergency outdoor cooking and gardening. The Camp Fire Girls' defense project, called "Fortifying the Family," is a three-part program of which the most important part is "family food." The girls prepare a "dinner for a dollar" which serves four.

On the "home front" clothing and housing are next in importance to food. Shortage of materials makes it increasingly necessary to care for what we already have. In the "family service" program of "Fortifying the Family" Camp Fire Girls are urged to repair furniture and other articles and help keep the house clean. The senior Girl Scouts are learning to clean, repair and remodel clothing for emergency distribution and to assist at housing information centers and air raid shelters. The Red Cross "home service" helps families of enlisted men and is prepared to care for the victims of disaster. The 4-H "Victory Program" also includes helping to make and repair clothing. And the OCD has an "emergency food and housing" division.

This has at various times been called a "war of production" and a "war of nerves." It is certainly at all times a war of production. On the farm and in the factory, women are taking the place of men called into the service. Schools and colleges are offering many types of defense study. The University of Chicago, for example, is training women in business administration. At Stevens college, in Missouri, the girls are studying mechanics. And the NYA is training young women for work in defense factories.

The 4-H clubs' "Food for Freedom" program is designed to train girls as well as boys to assume a larger responsibility for the management of farms where there is a shortage of labor. Both the Camp Fire Girls and the Girl Scouts are learning to care for younger children and to do routine household work to leave their mothers and older sisters free to work in factories or at other defense tasks.

If we have not yet had to face the test of a real "war of nerves," we have at least had ample proof of the need for maintaining a high national morale. Health, recreation, congenial working conditions and a courageous outlook all contribute to the maintenance of a high morale.

Health and Recreation.

The OCD offers a national health and recreation program for women. The Red Cross voluntary services for women include recreation work with convalescents. The Camp Fire Girls' "Fortify the Family" project offers a plan for "family fun," and the Girl Scouts and the 4-H clubs also emphasize the importance to national defense of health and recreation.

Such organizations as the U.S.O. and Bundles for Bluejackets are concerned chiefly with the comfort and recreation of service men. The U.S.O. operates canteens in railroad stations, furnishes recreation centers, and acts as co-ordinator between private families and the service men invited to their homes for dinner or entertainment. The Red Cross also operates canteens wherever and whenever needed.

The Camp Fire Girls have been sending cookies, cake and candy to service men through their public relations officers. The Service Scouts work in canteens operated by such recognized agencies as the U.S.O. And Bundles for Bluejackets is planning a recreation program for men in the naval services.

When the United States entered the war, the Bundles for Britain organization "adopted" the navy, the marines and the coast guard under the name "Bundles for Bluejackets." As such it provides comfort kits (containing razors, pencils and other small items) and knitted garments for men in those branches of the service and was probably the first organization to do knitting planned especially for the navy.

One of the major problems of the national defense program has been that of fitting the right person to a job. Recognizing that need, another women's organization, the American Association of University Women, is devoting its efforts to helping its members find the kind of defense work for which they are best suited. Since many members of the A.A.U.W. are teachers, they have been successfully furnishing libraries for service men, who are apparently more interested in text books—especially in mathematics, history and Spanish—than in fiction.

Finally, there is the splendid work being done in overseas, hospital, ambulance and other special services, the importance of which cannot be overestimated. The Red Cross volunteer services include the motor, nurse's aide and recreation corps, all prepared to serve either at home or in the field, and throughout the country hundreds of thousands of women are rolling bandages, sewing and knitting for the Red Cross. Army nurses have already been sent overseas with our armed forces, and Red Cross nurses and staff workers are stationed in many parts of the world.

While not exclusively a woman's organization, the British American Ambulance corps has many women volunteers. The work of the corps has, until the present emergency, been largely overseas, but New York city, Philadelphia and San Francisco have already been provided with ambulances, and units will be sent to other cities as they are needed.

The activities of the American Women's Voluntary Services group is chiefly localized in the eastern states, although the work of the A.W.V.S. is similar to that being done by other volunteer organizations in teaching air raid precautions and other defense activities.

Above all, each of these organizations is doing its part in the national defense program, and each is helping the others. The Camp Fire Girls have been knitting for the Red Cross, and at Christmas they filled hundreds of comfort kits for Bundles for Bluejackets. The Girl Scouts' senior service program includes training in defense activities and in aiding the U.S.O. and the Red Cross. The Red Cross first aid courses are offered as a defense measure. And the 4-H "Victory Program" stresses the practice of democratic principles as well as the need for giving assistance to the Red Cross and the U.S.O.

There is some duplication, of effort, of course, especially by the various motor corps. But on the whole the effort of all groups is directed to the same end—national defense.

A discussion as brief as this cannot possibly include all the work being done by women in their homes, local communities, churches and clubs. But the work of the organizations already discussed is representative. Whether they knit, serve overseas, work in factories, drive ambulances or just do their everyday jobs cheerfully and well, the American women are not only behind the war effort but definitely a tangible, efficient and indispensable part of it.

Stevens college students learning how airplane engines are made.

Bridge, fancy hats and even petty squabbles have been discarded in favor of hard work. Those who still look upon the war as an inconvenient interruption of their otherwise comfortable complacency are the exception rather than the rule.

Going to Washington? Then Read This First

So you're going to Washington? Good girl! You probably have a job, or you wouldn't have that determined look in your eye that says so clearly "I'm going, and nothing you can say will stop me."

Not for anything would anyone (not even the oldest and wisest of us) want to stop you, but there are a few minor details you step blithely off the train, run up against them yourself, and then wish when it's too late that someone had told you.

To begin with, 80 per cent of the new arrivals in Washington are girls, and 70 per cent of the available rooming space is listed "for men only." And then, there are the lines—you'll find them everywhere, at the movies, at the theaters, at the cafeterias, at the employment bureaus—blocks and blocks of them.

And there's the question of dates. You may like to stay at home night after night. But if you have a sneaking suspicion that you will inevitably meet an admirer or a general who will, of course, take you to the Mayflower every night, better bring along a good supply of mystery stories, because the answer is "no."

Of course, Washington has its brighter side. You will, if you're lucky, make a little more money than you made back home. You may meet some very interesting people. And, because you are working for the government, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you are doing your small part for victory. But you'll enjoy it all much more if you agree before you go to take all the inconveniences in your stride.

And salaries and wages are not as high as all that! Some girls start at $1,260, most at $1,440.

Fighting Ships at Sea, Despite Size, Need Air Protection for Success . . . Soviet Strategy Stamped 'O. K.' . . .
(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—The only reason that the Nazis—and Italians—have not run the Mediterranean fleet of the British out of "Mare Nostrum," or destroyed it, according to a very competent British official here, is that the British admirals in that sea simply will not move their ships unless they are accompanied by ample air power.

For instance, when the daring raid on Genoa by British war ships thrilled Britain the attacking ships were accompanied by an aircraft carrier. In contrast the destruction of the Repulse and the Prince of Wales occurred because they did not have the protection of fighting planes. In which connection it should be remembered that either a dive bomber or a torpedo plane is a set-up for a fast fighter.

Most of our reactionary admirals—who pooh poohed the notion of battleships being sunk by aircraft—have now been convinced. They have turned PART of the way. But not enough, if we are to accept the arguments of the air enthusiasts.

Men like Major Alexander P. de Seversky are convinced that most of the battleships now under construction, and which are consuming such huge quantities of steel that is badly needed for other things—and expert workmanship is even more desperately needed—will be obsolete by the time they are finished.

"A battleship," says Seversky, "venturing within range of enemy aviation operating from primary bases can hope to survive only if it is escorted by aviation equal to or superior to the total aviation on those bases. It is thus very much like a machine gun being conducted to its task by an escort of Big Berthas."

Most of the admirals say that we must have the battleship to "finish the job." This is on the old-fashioned, pre-World war doctrine that the battleship will be afloat, and some of their guns able to fire, after everything else has been sunk.

Airplanes Sink Them

That was before the admirals conceded that a battleship COULD be sunk by an airplane, though many of us had been convinced of this by Gen. William Mitchell off the Virginia Capes back in 1922. But American, British, and even a Japanese battleship have been sunk by airplanes since dawn of December 7. Most of the sinkings were by torpedoes fired by planes, the weapon which made the Bismarck unable to navigate before she was damaged seriously by shell fire.

Another point in this Japanese argument is that the Japanese, in their smashing advances in the Southwestern Pacific, have not used battleships to any important extent.

Japanese battleships were so scarce in these attacks—which certainly were intended to "finish the job"—that most experts thought the main Japanese fleet was in the Marshall and Caroline islands. This is probably why our fleet made a surprise attack on the Marshall islands.

Nor are U. S. battleships able to do anything about relieving General MacArthur, they being just as helpless to aid him as the Japanese battleships are to join in the attack he has been withstanding.

It seems as though the country is entitled to an intelligent defense for expending so much of our productive capacity on battleships.

Finish Off Hitler First Is Plan

Both President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill are in entire accord with the Soviet strategy. They do not share the popular impatience with Stalin for not loosing his bombers in attacks on Tokyo, arms factories, oil storage tanks, etc., in Japan. They agree with the Red dictator that the main job is to finish off Hitler—that tending to Japan and any other allies of the fuhrer will be just a "mopping-up" operation.

"Stalin may be a dictator," said one high government official to a little dinner group, "but he does have to pay some attention to public opinion even at that. Obviously, if public opinion goes against the best strategy in a life-and-death war, Stalin does not have to bother. He does not have to risk an election as Lincoln did in 1864."

There is another line of reasoning which has brought Roosevelt and Churchill into accord with the present Soviet policy of not attacking Japan. Both executives are profoundly convinced that Hitler is the main enemy. They want him beaten. And they are inclined to agree with Stalin that for him to risk an attack in the Far East might result in failure on both fronts.

It is pretty much the same logic which Churchill expounded in his address in the U. S. senate chamber. He said the question was asked why there were not more men and more planes in Malaya. His answer was Libya. To have divided his forces, he said, would have been to risk failure on both fronts.

THE MIGHTY WORKS OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 8:23-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him!—Matthew 8:27.

The mighty works of Jesus declared Him to be the Son of God—yes, very God Himself. Unbelieving men who would discredit the Word of God and deny the Godhood of the Son are at much labor and trouble to explain away the miracles, but without any success.

In our lesson for today we have Christ showing His divine power over the forces of nature, and over the demons of the evil spirit world. We find the disciples in the storm—

I. Fearful—but Not in Danger (vv. 23-27).

The Son of God—who had become Son of man—showed His true humanity by that weariness which made Him sleep through a tempestuous storm such as often came upon Lake Galilee. "Like a general in time of war Jesus slept when He could."

As He calmly slept, fear of destruction laid its deadly grip upon the hearts of the disciples. For the moment they saw only the angry waves, the smallness of their craft, the hopelessness of their situation, apparently forgetting that with Christ in the boat they were in no danger, in spite of the fearfulness of their surroundings and circumstances.

Is this not clearly a lesson for us in this day so full of alarms and fears? If we think of circumstances and conditions round about us we shall be overcome with fear—and well we may, if we do not have Christ with us in the boat of life. But if He is there—if we are His in the kinship of regenerating grace—we are in no danger. Shall we not accept the tender rebuke, "Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?" (v. 26).

The majestic scene of Christ stilling the tempest, reminds us not only that He can control any force of nature, but also that there is no storm of heart or mind or life to which He cannot authoritatively say, "Peace, be still" (Mark 4:39). Will you trust Him with your problem?

On the other side of the lake Christ met another kind of need—and cared for it. He there delivered two men who were—

II. Demon-dominated, but Not Hopeless (vv. 28-34).

There is only one devil, but he has many demons who do his bidding. The evidence is clear that these demons were able to enter into the personality of a human being and take control of the life. This was not insanity or a sickness of the body, but devil domination.

These two men (Mark and Luke speak only of one—perhaps the more violent of the two) were so strong and wicked because of the demon in them, that their relatives and friends had given them up as hopeless and had sent them out to live in the wilderness.

How horrible is the power of the devil in the life of any man or woman. But let us never forget that while no man can control such a situation (Mark 5:4), God is able. "With God all things are possible" (Matt. 19:26). We have not done all we can for our devil dominated friends and relatives until we have brought them to Jesus.

Notice that the demons recognized Christ as the Son of God (v. 29). They knew that He had the power to control them and that the day was to come when He would judge them.

The men were completely cured (Mark 5:15) as the demons were permitted to enter the herd of swine. Those poor beasts, apparently not content to harbor the evil spirits, cast themselves into the sea.

When the people of the land heard what had taken place they asked Jesus to leave. They evidently weighed the relative value of two men in their right mind over against a herd of swine and decided that they could not afford to have men delivered from the devil at such expense.

Unfortunately the "descendants" of those people seem to be in some of our churches today. They can afford anything in the way of luxury for themselves, but they are sure it costs too much to keep the church open—or to provide a preacher—or suitable equipment for the Lord's work. How unspeakably sad!

Perseverance

Soldiers must break step in marching over a bridge, for the vibration caused by their marching in step would shake down the most solid structure. And so it is with the spiritual obstacle you may meet: steady tramping, the plodding doing of your duty day after day, will in time tumble it over. In any task to which God sets you perseverance is all the power you need.

Power of Suggestion

To demonstrate the power of suggestion, an instructor of a class of 48 high-school boys recently passed around a large coin, asking them to examine it carefully, says Collier's. Forty minutes later, he requested each student to draw a picture of the coin, indicating the exact position of the hole in it. Although there was no hole, all but four of the 48 drawings included at least one.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD
Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Dried Products Help Solve Food Rationing Problem

WASHINGTON.—The next few months will undoubtedly bring some changes in our menus, but government experts agree there is no cause for alarm.

Whether or not we will be able to obtain the same kinds of food is a question that is not so easy to answer, but the bureau of home economics of the U. S. department of agriculture has several suggestions to offer. One of them is the use of dried or dehydrated products.

In addition to the fact that dried soup, fruits, vegetables, eggs and other products are a comparatively satisfactory substitute for those bought fresh from the market, they have the additional advantage of being compact and light in weight.

If tightening of transportation facilities continues, and if tin cans are scarce or unavailable, that will be an important factor in determining the commercial use of such products.

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

W-N-U-RELEASE

INSTALLMENT FIFTEEN

THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, who has come to Honolulu to press her claims to the island estate of Alakoa, learns that she is not an heiress at all, as her grandfather, Garrett Waterson, is still alive and on his way to the island. She and Tonga Dick or Richard Wayne, a member of the Wayne family which has been in control of the property since her grandfather's disappearance, find they are in love but they quarrel over Karen's claim to the island. Karen and her lawyer, John Colt, who is also in love with her, decide to leave Alakoa. But when their ship's captain, Ramey, asks for a man to pilot them through the dangerous reefs in Alakoa's harbor, Dick refuses him.

Now continue with the story.

"By Gar, then," Ramey jabbered, "I'll pilot her out myself! I'll run your damn channel! I'll run your damn shoals! There's no coral in the Pacific that can stop me."

"You won't pilot this," Dick told him. "The tide has changed on you, Ramey; you'll never find the way without someone to tell you where you are. Go ahead and pile up your boat; when you've piled her up I'll take your people off. But the Seal will never get out of this bay tonight."

"I'll get a Kanaka pilot off the beach!"

"You've already tried that—or you wouldn't be coming to me."

A storm of blasphemous vituperation from Ramey's boat assured Dick that what he had guessed was true; Ramey had already failed to find a pilot ashore. Weary of argument, weary of Ramey, very much tired out with everything that was going on around him, Dick left the rail and went to the other side of his ship. For a little while the shout-imprecations of the Seal's skipper still disrupted the night. But, since he answered no more, even these at last died away; and the bay of Alakoa was silent except for the clink and thug of oarlocks as the Seal's boat went home.

Dick grinned sardonically at the anchor lights of the Seal; but it was not the boat he was thinking about. "At least," he said aloud, "I know exactly where she is; and where she will stay, this one night more."

CHAPTER XIII

Presently Dr. Shimazu came on deck and talked to Dick Wayne.

"I think she's all right now," he said. "You go look for yourself."

"The knife wound—?" Dick asked.

"The wound isn't going to amount to anything, I hope. But you come with me and look, so I can go home."

Dick went below with Dr. Shimazu, and hesitantly made his way into the little stateroom in the stern where he usually slept.

Hokano was stretched out face down upon the bunk beside Lilua, his face upon his arms; and Lilua had turned a little so that she could hide her face in Hokano's shoulder. When Dick had stood there for a moment, Lilua lifted her head, and looked at Dick without expression.

At first he thought that she was unable to see him; but in a few moments he decided that she did. She was simply looking at him with complete impersonality, like a cat; or perhaps simply like a girl looking at someone who doesn't mean anything to her any more. Soon Lilua lowered her head again, returning her face to Hokano's shoulder; and it was perfectly evident that Dick was instantly gone from her mind.

"I guess you were right," Dr. Shimazu said. "It takes a Kanaka to fix a Kanaka—providing they don't kill each other first."

"Of course I was right," Dick said. "Can she be moved ashore now?"

"I think so; yes."

"Inyashi! See that the girl is moved ashore—carefully—and taken home."

"Yes, Tonga."

"Maybe," Dr. Shimazu suggested, "I can go home now."

"Your night is only starting," Dick answered; "I've got other work for you now."

Dick called away the shoreboat again, and, with Shimazu, went aboard the Sarah.

Garrett Waterson's cabin, as they entered it now, was a strange mess. It differed from all other cabins in that it was full of more charts than most people have ever seen. There were charts all over the wall, overlapping each other in reefs and pads—and a great number of these had been drafted by Dick Wayne. There was even a chart nailed to the bottom of the deck above Garrett Waterson's bunk, where he could read it as he lay in bed. Hardly anyone ever got into this room; certainly, since Garrett Waterson had first taken possession, no one had ever cleaned it up. Old shoes, and sea boots, and miscellaneous clothing were piled about, or hung upon nails. But all this litter could mean nothing in this room—the charts were everything here.

Everything, that is, except the man. The ancient figure in the bunk had been a man of huge frame, once. Fever had carved his face very close to the bone, taking away much of his substance. Yet neither old age nor wasting fever could ever make this man appear ascetic—he simply never had been made on ascetic lines. Everything about him had been built in the beginning to be big and vital. There was something arresting, even terrible, about this big frame which had been built to a vitality for which the fuel was now gone.

"So that's the way the wind sets," Garrett Waterson said at last. "Well, I guess that's the worst of all."

And there was no doubt about the fuel being gone. A faint surprise showed in the eyes of Dr. Shimazu as he perceived that Garrett Waterson was still definitely alive. Little but the body structure of the frame itself now remained to show what Garrett Waterson had been. First inspection found no sign of life in the face, or in the big skeletonized form under the blankets.

After a minute, though, they saw the gleam of the living eyes. In Garrett Waterson's eyes still lived the embattled flame which had driven this man always to wild, extravagant, and uncompromising things.

Garrett Waterson spoke huskily to Tonga Dick. "You're a knockout, you little squirt, you are," he said. "What's the idea?"

Perhaps no one else in the warm seas had ever been able to dominate Tonga Dick as Garrett Waterson could. Shimazu was amazed to hear Dick speak hesitatingly.

"Well," Dick said, without much effect, "I thought I ought to come back here."

Garrett Waterson's voice roared hollowly. "What the hell else should we do but come back? Do you have to duck out with our only fast ship?"

"Didn't know you meant to come."

This time the effect was galvanic. The old skeleton form that had seemed dead whipped up on one elbow with a dreadful, inappropriate energy. Garrett Waterson's voice came like the ghostly shell of a roar that once would have blown a main-sail down.

"Who are you, you insufferable pup, to say what we are going to do?"

As Garrett Waterson raised himself, Shimazu made a quick, instinctive movement, as if he wished to stop an effort which obviously was more than that ancient and wasted frame could stand. But Dick halted Shimazu with a gesture so casual that it carried an implication of utter fatality. He knew, if Shimazu did not, that only one thing would ever stop Garrett Waterson from any unwisdom whatever.

"Sorry, sir."

"Damn your sorriness," Garrett Waterson said in a diminished voice. He eased himself back until he lay as lifeless as before. "And damn you," he added.

"Okay," Dick said. "Damn me. What then?"

"Where is this girl?" Waterson demanded.

"Well," Dick began, "the fact is—"

"What's she like?" Garrett hurried him.

"Well," Dick began again, "she weighs about one hundred and twenty pounds, with kind of blue eyes, and—"

"Blonde and sallow," Garrett Waterson said bitterly. "By God, I knew it! Self-righteous, holier-than-thou. Preaching half the time. Wears starched clothes. Oh, I knew it!"

The outburst winded the old man, and the silence that followed gave Dick time to consider. He supposed that Garrett Waterson was assigning to Karen the attributes he had chosen to recognize in the family into which his son had married. Or, perhaps, the old man's resentment had been inspired by something even more unhappy than that.

"No," Dick said. "She isn't like that. There isn't anything like that about her at all."

Garrett Waterson rolled questioning eyes upon Dick and waited.

"She has blue eyes, like I said, but she has black hair; and she's the color of a gardenia, and she doesn't ever tan at all. There's no preaching about her—for all I know there isn't even any morality. And she's more alive than anything you ever set eyes on yet."

There was a silence again. "So that's the way the wind sets," Garrett Waterson said at last. "Well, I guess that's the worst of all."

"Doesn't anything ever please you?"

"From what you say," Garrett Waterson said, "the girl takes after me. What worse luck could you have than that, I'd like to know?"

There was something ridiculous in the suggestion that Karen Waterson

"took after" this gnarled and huge old man; yet Dick could see that in both there was a certain essential spirit that was the same.

The old man seemed to rest for a moment, and Dr. Shimazu took the opportunity to attempt a counting of Waterson's pulse. Waterson made an irascible resistance. "Get this Jap's hands off of me! Who do you think—"

"You'll either let him examine you," Dick said, "or I'll walk out on you altogether, and you'll probably never so much as set eyes on this girl!"

There was anger in old Waterson's eyes, but he must have known his disadvantage. He attempted to ignore the situation by pretending not to notice Shimazu as the Japanese put a stethoscope to work.

"No wonder," Garrett Waterson said to Dick, "that she goes rattling all over the Pacific, trying to grab stuff that doesn't belong to her. If you take my advice you'll stay away from this girl! She isn't going to come to any good end. And neither will you, if you fool around with the likes of her!"

"That's a hell of a fine way," Dick said, "to talk about your own granddaughter."

"Don't you think," Garrett Waterson said savagely, "I know my own breed? She's no good, you mark my word! Or else what's she doing here, at this late date, trying to dig up old trouble?"

Old Waterson closed his eyes, exhausted again.

Shimazu looked at Dick queerly as he rolled up the tubes of his stethoscope; he came to the door and consulted with Dick in whispers.

"I'll take his temperature as soon as we're sure he's asleep," Shimazu said. "But even without that, I can tell you, this is a very weak man. He should have been in a hospital long ago—certainly he should never have tried to come here now. We're going to find out there's more than one kind of fever in this case. Black-water certainly; and maybe something worse."

"Do you think he's in danger this time?"

Shimazu permitted himself a queer waxy smile. "At his age, and with so much wrong with him, there's no reason why he should be alive at all. His heart is very irregular, weak, and slow. My advice is if you want anything from this man, get it soon. For all I can guarantee, he may never talk lucidly again."

"It's as bad as that, is it?"

Shimazu shrugged. "This is a worn out machine. Yes," he added, returning to the understatement that he favored, "this man is sick."

They stood silent for the space of more than a minute, looking at the figure in the bunk. A huge flying cockroach, with a body bigger than a mouse, flew blunderingly across the cabin, and hit the bulkhead with a metallic clatter; it recovered itself immediately, and ran behind a large chart of Rotoava Anchorage.

"I've got to get up," Garrett Waterson mumbled. "I've got to see James Wayne."

They ignored this, and the mumbling ceased. There were a few moments of complete silence.

Suddenly the still figure spoke in a surprisingly strong voice, a voice that seemed wrung from it by an unexplainable emotion. "I would have given my whole life—my whole life, and a lease on my soul in hell, just to see her—just to look at her one time!"

For some unknown reason Shimazu looked appalled.

"By God," Dick said, "then you shall!" He turned to the ladder.

"It's no good," Shimazu said. "By the time you get her here, he'll never know her. Tomorrow maybe, if he is still alive—"

"Then she'll be here tomorrow, too," Dick promised. He went up the ladder like the jump of a marlin.

Then, as he came out of the companionway, he was instantly checked. Now that he was on the open deck he could hear, across the quiet waters of the bay, the clatter of the Seal's loose-jointed Diesel, and he could see the Seal's lights moving away from her anchorage. Captain Ramey had weighed his anchor, and was putting to sea.
